OR

Translate the following paragraph into Hindi or Marathi

The right to speedy trial is one of the basic objectives of the administration of justice. This right flows from article 21 of the Indian constitution which is available to accused at all stages of trial, investigation, appeal etc. The various reason for delay are numerous litigations, absence of witness and absence of lawyers. There is no system of day to day hearing and there is also delay in the delivery of judgment. Right to speedy trial must be the basic feature of a judicial system because delay may defeat justice. There should be proper balance between speed and justice.
