Q.4 Read the following passage and answer the questions: (10)

In the world of track and field, there are three different types of runners—sprinters, middle distance runners and distance runners. Sprinters run the short distances and the races may last only a few seconds. Sprinters are generally characterized by fast, explosive muscles. These runners are typically extremely muscular. The second type of runner, the middle distance runner, runs longer races such as the quarter-mile dash or the 800-meter run. A good middle distance runner must be versatile. He or she must possess a combination of speed and endurance. The final type of runner is the distance runner. Physically speaking, a distance runner is on the other end of the spectrum from a sprinter. He or she typically runs races that are anywhere from 1600 to 10000 meters and has a thin, lean muscle tone. Distance runners are usually small and light.

Questions:

- 1) What are the physical differences between a sprinter and a distance runner?
(Answer in not more than two sentences)
- 2) Why should a middle distance runner be versatile?
- 3) Which words in the passage mean : a) stamina b) thin, having very little fat.
