- The years passed too quickly. In 1940, Nani finished his BA with honors in English, and in 1942 his MA with honors in the same subject. In these exams he could not complete his papers because the writer's cramp that was to haunt him for the rest of his life had begun to appear. For the first LL.B. examination he was given writer. The person sent for the morning paper was so incompetent that Nani refused to continue with him and came out of the examination hall exasperated. Nargesh immediately contacted the Vice-Chancellor of the University, who directed the supervisor at the examination center to allow Nargesh herself to substitute. Another writer was sent to the afternoon paper and those to follow. He continued to be with Nani during all the subsequent examinations – second LL.B., Advocate AS and Advocate OS. An interesting anecdote is recounted by Jayasheela Badami who was told about it by her cousin Kishore Nanavaty. Justice P.S. Badami, Jayasheela's father, was one of the examiners for law exams.

P.T.O.

Once, while he was correcting paper, he asked Kishore to have a look at one paper, and commented that it was extremely well written, well focused, accurate and in proper order. He said he thought the student deserved to be ranked number one and that he would time him full marks for the paper. Since the answer book did not bear the name of the examinee, Kishore, a curious youngster, memorized the seat number to check it up at a later date. When results were published, Kishore looked for the name matching the seat number. He found the name Nani Palkhivala.

On completing his BA, Nani's desire was to be a college lecturer. It went well with his taste for literature, and his professors had given him all encouragement he needed. He even applied for a lecturer's post, but another lady candidate was equally well-qualified and had teaching experience too, which Nani did not have. So he did not get selected.

Questions:

- a) Why was Mr. Nani unable to complete his papers?
- b) Why was Justice P.N. Badami impressed with Nani Palkhivala?
- c) Why was Nani's desire to become a lecturer not fulfilled?
