- Q.2 Read the passage and answer the questions below: [15]

Village Swaraj is that it is complete republic, independent of its neighbours for its vital wants, and yet dependent for many others in which dependence is necessary. Thus, the first concern of every village will be to grow its own food crop and cotton for its clothes. It should have a reserve for its cattle's, recreation and playgrounds for adults and children. Then if there is more land available, it will grow usually money crops, thus excluding ganja, tobacco, opium and the like. The village will maintain a village theatre school and public hall. It will have its own water works ensuring clean supply. This can be done through controlled wells and tanks. Education will be conducted on a co-operation basis; there will be no castes, such as we have today with their graded untouchability. Non-violence with its technique of satyagrah and non-cooperation will have the sanction of the village community. There will be compulsory service of village guards who will be selected by rotation from the register maintained by the village. The Government of the village will be conducted by the Panchayat of five persons annually elected by the adult villagers, male and female, possessing minimum prescribed qualifications.

Questions:

- a) In what way is village Swaraj complete republic?
- b) What will be the first concern of every village?

There are many forms of harm which are not actionable at law. Where damage is suffered without any violation of law it is called "damnum sine injuria" which is not a subject of redressal under the law. Fair competition in business is not actionable at law, but if the competition in business takes the shape of enmity, that is the hindering of business of the neighbour, it entitles him to take action against the wrong doer. This action is actionable at law.

Q.2 Read the passage and answer the questions given below it. (15)

The men who were governing Athens summoned Socrates to appear before them and to stand his trial. His friends and pupils begged him to escape or to hide until the storm had blown over. But Socrates was no coward. He knew that he had done nothing wrong and thus he had only taught what he believed to be just, true and honorable, and so he went to the Court, an undersized, ugly old man, dusty and travel -stained, but with a noble heart beating under the shabby garments which every one knew so well. He made a powerful, dignified speech, answering every question, explaining that, although the Athenians knew it not, he was really their friend. He told them that they would gain nothing by taking away the last few years of his life, but that he was willing to die many deaths for what he believed to be right.

The judges listened to him, questioned him, and condemned him to death. The old man made no complaint. He leaned on his staff, looking round the crowded Court. 'No evil can happen to a good man', he said, 'either in life or after death, so be of good cheer. The hour of my departure has arrived and we go our ways, I to die, and you to live'.

The real strength of judiciary lies in its lawyers. Without good lawyers it is almost impossible to discharge the functions of an able and independent judiciary. It is gratifying that the bar of this state provides in abundant measure, the high qualities of head and heart which are necessary for carrying on the profession of law with ability in a fearless manner. The profession of law has been termed noble. The nobility of the profession consists in this fact that the lawyers have to act as watchmen protecting the rights granted by the Constitutions and link life and liberty of people and to see that these rights are not violated.
